Changes at the Kinder Institute of Life Planning, Future Plans Announced

[BOSTON, MA, August 27, 2007] -- George Kinder, President of the Kinder Institute of Life Planning, announced today that Susan Galvan, who co-founded the institute with him in 2002 and served as CEO, has resigned to pursue other interests. "Susan made wonderful contributions to the Kinder Institute," says co-founder George Kinder, who will remain at the helm of the Kinder Institute. "While we will miss her many talents, we wish her well in her new endeavors and will remain mutually supportive as the future unfolds."

George Kinder and Susan Galvan co-authored many articles, including a detailed look at the EVOKE™ process, a system the Kinder Institute developed to help financial planners incorporate more holistic communication skills into their practices (Journal of Financial Planning, April 2004). Kinder and Galvan are also co-authors of Lighting the Torch: The Kinder Method of Life Planning (FPA Press, October 2006).

Galvan has re-established her own company, Galvanic Communications LLC, to offer consulting to financial services firms across the globe which are undergoing evolutionary change toward client-centered services; trainings and classes in relationship skills and life planning for financial professionals; and ongoing development and design of customized products and services for the financial services industry. She can be reached through her Web site, www.GalvanicCommunications.com.
